Dirty Bent Bastards

Even the most ruthless people need something to care about...

Maxwell, a lonely gay man, is scarred in more ways than one after he becomes victim of a horrific homophobic attack in a South London park. But fate deals him a chance to get revenge on his attacker after running into a shifty old business associate called Barry - who some might say - has unsavoury and dubious connections.

With Maxwell suffering psychologically and Barry's business empire not being in the best of health, it occurs to them that a plan of retribution on the perpetrator could benefit them both.

Calling on the services of Rock, a disgruntled old gangster friend retired in Rio, it's up to Maxwell and Barry to manipulate the situation into him returning to London for one last hit.

But as events unfold, it becomes clear that everyone's motives are not as they first appeared, and the job of punishing Maxwell's low-life attacker takes a shocking and unexpected twist.

A fucked up, dark and outrageous black comedy that on the surface subverts the gangster movie genre, but at its heart tells a story about people's fear of growing old, alone, and without love.

Running time: 27 minutes

Dirt Bent Bastards, a dark, twisted and outrageous parody that isn't afraid to stick its finger up the ass of the Guy Ritchie gangster movie genre.

The film is the fourth commercial short from award winner writer, producer, director Max Barber. His previous shorts, A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Funeral, VGL-Hung! (represented by The British Council) & Homoworld, have toured the international film festival circuit and been broadcast through TV and cable through distributors Outa Media in North America and Peccadillo Pictures in Europe.

Dirty Bent Bastards is his 2nd co-production with an adult entertainment studio; a resourceful and radical approach to producing independent short film whereby Max writes and produces his project around the infrastructure, cast, crew and locations already employed by the filming of an R18 film. Using many well known faces in the world of gay porn in supporting roles, Max brings in professional script editors and actors for leading roles with which to construct a piece of narrative fiction - only loosely based on the R18 version - and tailored at a much more commercial market in term of content. His films look to tap into popular subjects and genre but exploring sexual and political themes that lean towards LGBT (Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender) and liberal minded audiences who like philosophical ideas served up on a humorous and quirky plate.
